Germans Trying to Find Comfort From President's Speech

Berlin, Friday, Dec. 6 (via Copenhagen).—The summary of the address delivered by President Wilson before congress last Monday which has reached here is presumably inadequate and in sense there has been little comment on it in the newspapers. Germans seek vainly for comfort in the message and in Mr. Wilson's program, in which it is supposed that America and the allies have pledged themselves that Germany will have only a shadowy existence at the peace conference. only a shadowy existence at the passe conference.

A large majority of Germans be lieve in President Wilson's good in tentions and all their hopes are cen tered in him, but there is a genera tered in him, but there is a general fear which amounts almost to a settled belief that he will be unable to force his program through. The Zeitung of Wednesday says:

"It is almost unimaginable optimism for one to hope that Wilson's intervention will mitigate the destructive conditions of peace."

Other comment seems to recognize that President Wilson may not be the dominating figure that Germans have expected him to be. Some papers declare that he approved of "America's imperialistic naval policy" and has failed to check the entente's "piratical economic plans."

JANESVILLE'S FUTURE DEVELOPMENT WILL FORCE BUSINESS MEN TO EXTEND ACTIVITIES

Increased Population Calls for Preparation to Meet the Demand That Will be Made Upon Stores-Added Families Will Compel Better Service.

By Harry V. Ross. Janesville is facing the same sort of problem that a growing boy faces when he starts to stretch his continually confronted with the difficulty of keeping his coat sleeves and pant legs long enough to hide his lengthened extremities.

Janesville has before it the problem of keeping pace with the growth of industrial development. Like the boy, the growth, is slow in starting and the parents do not realize he is getting bigger until they are compelled to make a quick shift to make him presentable. Business men of the city are awakening to the realization that they must expand as more families are added to the population. Each day sees more people coming here to make their homes. In the last ton days twenty-four new families were reported by the Chamber of Commerce. As work progresses on the General Motors Corporation plant the number of incoming future citizens will increase and when the first unit is ready for operation census reports will show several thousand more residents than Janesville has ever claimed as her own. The city is bound to change from a trading center, almost solely rural in character, to one in which a large portion of the purchasers of necessities and luxuries will be workmen, earning good wages. Business houses with their present programs are able to take care of the trade which comes to them. But with expansion in industry must come expansion in trade facilities. Janesville now is a thriving hustling business town. It has one of the best agricultural districts in the country from which to draw its patronage. The business men have been keen to appreciate their opportunities for winning and keeping this trade. The city has some of the most up-to-date stores in the state of Wisconsin. They have the latest wrinkles the markets afford. They have studied their opportunitles, and they have been able to compete with Milwaukee and Chicago. They have inspired confidence in their customers and they are not going to lose them.

But keeping what they have is not enough. Business men much prepare to handle the additional trade and this preparation must not delayed until the poulation increases to such an extent that it will be difficult to give adequate service. Business experts all over the country are optimistic over the prospects for prosperity for several years to come. Predictions are made that wages will continue about as they are, at least during the reconstruction period which the world is to undergo. Workmen have been buying the best the market affords for several years. They will continue to do so as long as wages remain at their present standard. Not only necessities but luxuries will be purchased. Thousands of dollars will be paid these workmen each month and thousands of dollars will be spent each month by those who earn that money.

Merchants of Janesville who are on the ground have the advantage of the man who will come in to share the increased trade. That new concerns will come in is a foregone conclusion. Established business houses, prepared to give service, with long years of prestige behind them, will naturally be the leaders in their various fields. But it is necessary not to overlook the fact that those who come establish themselves are going to be armed with the best methods for getting their share of the business. Keen, successful business men who know the possibilities of a flourishing industrial center are going to make a bid for that patronage. Before they come here they will make a study of every condition which will be presented to them. They will know the field and when established will use every method at their command to win business. As the city grows there will be sufficient business for all but it will he the man who has the vision new and prepares for the future who will reap a good portion of success when the increase comes,

Food administration estimates as to the need of immense supplies for Europe had given the corn market an upward siant even before the attention of traders became focussed on the great expansion of the hog raising industry. Authorities figures, however, on the increase of the number of hogs in excess of the total a year ago were taken to indicate that enlarged production of corn had been more than counterbalanced and this view was sharply emphasized by the subsequent fixing of the January average hog price at $17.50, the same as for December. Nevertheless, later in the week, prices to some extent weakened owing to signs that the crop movement was seen to expand.

Outs were sustained chiefly by the strength of corn and by a fair demand from the board.

Improved cash demand helped to put iffuness into provisions.

TOILET PAPER, S. A., on sale at 4 rolls for .. 25c AT 79c.

There was an open forum at the Baptist church last evening, at which a better and bigger Janesville was the topic of discussion.

The possibilities of a new era dawning for Janesville in the near funire, were discussed by able speakers. I. Green, in an informal way, presented some of the facts which in his judgment must be considered in the very near future, in connection with the growth of Janesville. He said:

The present population of Janesville comprises less than 14,000, with an area of seven and a half square filles, with an approximate valuation of ten million dollars' worth of property. The federal survey, taken a while ago, gave approximately four thousand workers, with an annual pay roll of four million one hundred and thirty—to thousand dollars. The plans for General Motors Corporation contemplate the output of five hundred tractors a day, with a force employed of ten thousand men. During this next year it is planned to bring into the city about 1,600 men and their milles. The second year about the we. To provide for proper housing cilities of this increase in the population, and to head off speculation and prefiteering in real estate, the Janeswille Improvement association has increase in the population, and to head off speculation and prefiteering in real estate, the Janeswille Improvement association has been formed. They have planned to make a general improvement all over the city, and not confine the building to a congested quarter. Six thousand homes to be built during the next ten vears, is not a large estimate of what will be required from this organization.

The General Motors Corporation is The General Motors Corporation is roing to house its employes, in proper fashion. If the city can do it, a moderate increase in real estate prices will result, but if a spirit of high prices and profitering sets in the chances are that a new industrial city. If he built somewhere down the line, it Janesville will be side-tracked and left to itself. He touched somewhat upon the feeling of apathy which had formerly been evident among the citizens, and said that this had been replaced by a feeling of encayslasm and wide-awake endeavor. In noted the great natural advantages of the city, and its unlimited possibilities for the future, S. M. Smith spoke on the needs of the city schools when compared with an increase in population, and said that frankly the school board did not anow what to advise. All the build-an increase in population, and sate that frankly the school board did not know what to advise. All the buildings were over-crowded, and many of them unsanitary and out of date. With the 2,500 children now in the city, many of the rooms have to be used twice, alsles are eliminated, and class rooms used for regular sittings. With the possibilities of another thousand children during the next year, the problem, of taking care of them is a complex one. He considered the question of having a junior high school which would accommodate the higher classes of the grade schools, and so relieve them of some of the surplus for the time being, and building a new high school, which should be modern, and up-to-date, and accommodate the iarger number of high school pupils which were coming to need such training.

ingree number of high school pupils which were coming to need such training.

J. C. Hanchett considered briefly the problems connected with the churches in handling the increased number of familles which are expected in the city. He read extracts from recent book by Charles Sheldon, pertinent to the topic.

A delicious supper was served to about one hundred men at 6:30 celock by the ladies' societies of the Baptist church.

The Baptist orchestra of ten pieces played several selections before the supper hour, and Miss Clara Shawvan sang. "Laddie," and "Coming Tirro" the Rye," with plane accompaniment by Miss Clara Swartz.

The officers elected were: Fresident, Roger Cunningham; vice-president, E. P. Ehrlinger; secretary, C. S. Barker; treasurer, Fred Scarcliff. A series of similar meetings are planned for the winter, the next one being held the third of January.

REV. CLARKE CUMMINGS TO LEAVE JANESVILLE

Reverend Clarke Cummings of the Christian church has tendered his resignition as pastor of the local church to take effect the middle of January, that he may accept a call to the Central Christian Church of Flint, Michigan. This church has just dedicated a new sixty thousand dollar structure, erected in the center of the new residence district, in fact the only church in this part of the city, and has a consregation of some three hundred persons.

Reverend Cummings came to Janesville four years ago, as the first pastor of the Christian church and has had an important part in the civic life of the community ever since. He is an coquent speaker, enthusiastic in his cliurch work, and most popular with all classes of citizens. Alive to all questions of civic betterment and improvements he has played an important part in the matters of this nature during his four years' residence

During the past spring and summer has devoted much time to Army aplain work at Camp Grant and rious army cantonments, at the same time keeping up his local church work. His decision to accept the call to the Filnt church will be learned with regret by all who have come in rootact with him during his residence here, and he, himself, expresses rejectance to accept the call. Which carries with it a far larger parish than he now has, and is much more important in the work of his church with a decided increased emoluments. He will not leave until some time in January. No successor has yet been nosen by the church trustees.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

It sufficeth us nothing to say "I bolleve," And remain on the edge of the fray; from the only a formula framed to deceive; We must live all the good words we say.

What availeth the strength of a leader without The support of a resolute band? For the legions of night may not be put to rout With the might of a single brave hand.

The lone travelor raiseth slight dust on the road,
The lone bird wings a vague, slight flight.
We must not leave to one man the great common load
Of construction and putting things right,

We must cust all we have in the dark breach of hate,
Follow bravely where'er love may lead.
It sufficest us nothing to watch and wait—
With our lives we must quicken our creed.
—Dorothy F. Cummings in the August Humanitarian.

The war has emphasized the force of that old statement, "In possessed, regardless of cost or expense, and the tramp of our victory to every loyal citizen.

History is making so fast these days that it is difficult to keep pace, but there are some things which are of peculiar interest betieneral John J. Pershing filed with Secretary Baker, the other day, his report of our armies in the field from the date of entry last March until that greatest day in history—November eleventh—when the armistice was signed. The report is a choice tribute to the men in the ranks—the men who compelled the Hun to come out of the trunches, and meet them in open warfare. This was the turning point of the war, and while the great American general is too modest to claim any credit, it will be found, when the history is published, that General Pershing had much to do in turning Hun victory into defeat at this critical stage of the game.

Dispatches bearing the same date as General Pershing's report, record a letter from General Leonard Wood, addressed to the men being discharged from cantonments and training camps. It will be remembered that General Wood was side-tracked early in the game—an outrage which possibly the democratic administration can explain—but he was too his a number of the stage of the game.

Or matches to day are killed in action 41: clead of wounds 169: died of accident and other causes 25: died of decident and other causes 25: died of accident and other causes 25: died of accide cause they deal with the human interest side of life. For instance, tion can explain—but he was too big a man to be lost, or to sulk, and so his work has been effective in home camps. In issuing honorable discharges to the men in his cantonment he took occasion to tell them that while they were not permitted to go overseas and take active part at the front that they were none the less heroes. entitled to all the honor that comes with sacrifice. It was a humane discharge, full of appreciation.

And so the aftermath of the war finds us sharing honors in every department of civic as well as military life. The united efforts of a great nation are irresistible and when Germany finally realized that the United States was in full swing, with Berlin as its distination, the square-headed Bochelost heart, and reluctantly sued for peace. It is a pity that the allied armies did not cross the Whine before the armistice was granted, for Germany, from the highest to the lowest, has as yet showed no signs of repentance, and it may be necessary for the army of occupation to put the fear of God in her heart before she comes to her senses.

We have been studying Germany for the past four years or nore, at long range, and the knowledge acquired has been so meager that it possessed but little value. We flattered ourselves that the people were starving and that the most of them were attired in paper clothing. We said that the common people of Germany were so tired of war that they would gladly quit, and a revointion would have been in order at any time. But Germany at close range-as she is today-presents a different proposition. The people are not starving and they show but little sign of destitution. If there are any common people in the band, waiting to be delivered from thralldom, they have not yet appeared on the surcace. They are as loyal today to the Hohenzollern outfit as they were six months ago, and Ludendorff and Von Hindenburg still enjoy their confidence.

With free access to Germany, as we have today, the discovery is made that the war was the one and only business of every last German, even to the women and children, and the only sorrow expressed today is in the fact that they didn't win. The Crown Prince pleads the baby act and says that he and his father have suffered enough and ought not to be persecuted any more. Not an expression of sorrow from any source. The square heads don't seem to realize that they have done anything wrong. They will be R. M. Bostwick & Son better informed before the winter is over, for the army of occupation is there to stay, and a few months of military government

But the war is over, thank God, and Germany is down and out for a long time to come-long enough for the present breed of Hohenzollerns to die out, and before the next brood is hatched the Divine right of iKngs will have lost caste. The new Germany will ie a Ropublic, after Bolshevism and Anarchy are wiped out, and after Socialism is toned down by common sense. The great fortunes of the Empire will be used to help pay the debts, and when these are taken care of, the division of property will not look so attractive to the socialistic crowd.

The problems of peace now confront us, and while the war is over the allied armies of occupation, more than a million strong. are still in the field, and liable to be kept there for many mon't to come. The defeat of Germany is but the beginning of the end of autocracy. The Turk is as arrogant and as blood-thirsty today as ever and the redemption of Turkey must be considered a part of the peace program, while Russia must be aided and directed towards freedom and the light. The old world is one vast missionary field today and the war has made this great field white and ready for the harvest. War has always been the great civilizer, and the world war just closed is no exception to the rule.

The Peace Conference, soon to convene, means more to the allied nations than it does to us, because the map of the old world | is to be made over, and these nations are interested in the division of territory. Then, too, they have immense claims for the destruction of property, and a long score to settle for cruelty and barbarity. It would have been a gracious thing for our country to have said to our allies: "Gentlemen, we will back you to the limit; in the Peace Conference, but the work is yours. All we ask is punishment for the guilty, restoration as far as possible, and a peace which shall be abiding."

But America is not doing business that way this year, and so our self-appointed President is trailing across the Atlantic, attracting more attention than a volcano in continuous performance, to be present with his portfolio of fourteen peace articles, when the conference convenes. "He is it" are the three little words which express the egotism of our worthy chief magistrate, and it is to he hoped that some of the conceit may be jarred out of him before his return. But Congressman Mann is right, after all, when he says that the mission is too important to be burlesqued. The peace, as well as the freedom of the world, is at stake, and this is why America is so intensely interested.

. The peace problems at home touch us where we live and a good deal of uncertainty is felt as to just how heavy the touch will be. Turning back into the peaceful pursuits of life, an army of from four to five million men and women, means a disturbance for both capital and labor, and history furnishes no precedent on which to base judgment, so that it is difficult to forecast results. Labor, for the past two years, has been in the saddle, so far as government and railroad work is concerned. Every demand has been met without question, because of the war. The railroads have run behind two hundred million dollars, during the past year, in spite of government control, and the government has squandered money right and left for material as well as wages, and no questions asked. But the government will soon cease to be an employer, and the old law of supply and demand will again come to the surface.

Labor has not suffered during the war. The laboring people of England have had more money to spend, and have never lived so well as during the past four years. In this country they have not only lived well, but many of them have bought Liberty bonds, and know what it is to have a bank account. It is to be hoped that during the adjustment period, things may be so wisely handled that wages may maintain a good level, and that capital and labor may work together for the success of both. The cost of living is as sure to come down as time is to pass. The drain on our food supply will soon be overand when it is, the necessities of life will be within reach of the moderate income.

In the meantime let us work together for the common good. Union There is Strength!" for the Nation put into it all that we It is a long stride from a war level to a peace basis, and yet that is the stride we are taking. It seems good to shake off the shackles army, "four million strong," was like the tramp of a single man. of war even if we were three thousand miles away. Let us take This was made possible because back of the army was America so hold of the readjustment with a will and the country will soon intent on winning that all else was forgotten. The war was our settle down to its old swing with three square meals a day, and one and only business and the victory won seemed like a personal with the peace which has come to bless the world will come to our hearts the spirit of contentment and happiness.

WILL RICKENBACHER RETURN TO RACING?

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacher beside his pursuit plane in France.

Eddie Rickenbacher, former auto racing star, proved to be one of the great American heroes of the war. As an aviator he became a famous ace, downing dozens of German planes. He is said by some correspondents to have fired the final shot of the war, also. He undoubtedly will return to America now that his services as a filer are no longer reached. Possing anthusiasts are wonhis services as a filer are no longer needed. Racing enthusiasts are wondering if he will return to auto racing or go in for air racing—doing aerial thrills for exhibition purposes. The movie field awaits him—with the fabulous salary and chance to bask in the public eye. The stage will bid for his services. Will the movies or some other attraction or a desire to settle down keep him from re-enter-ing the athletic world?

Before I left Mrs. Green telephoned to Lucile and told her that she was safe. I took the liberty of ransacking the pantries and storeroom of the Huntingdon house for supplies and carried away enough tinned stuff to assure the garrison at Green's island at least one square meal.

Bill and myself embarked alone. I carry with me yet in memory the picture of Mrs. Green and Lipton S. Clair as I left them, two strangely clad figures, one in a red ball gown, the other In a calico wrapper and whiskers hobnobbing over a pot of tea.

CHAPTER XVI.

A Fire and a Rescue. i journey back to Green's Island was uneventful. The sea had calmed down enough so that we shipped very little water. When we landed I was thankful to note that there were no lights in the house. Apparently every one had gone to bed for a much needed rest. I sent Bill up to get Chair's clothing, while I unloaded the supplies and hid them under the dock. I expected to telephone Jim in the morning and tell him where they were so that he could cook breakfast for the castaways. When Bill returned I helped him put out to sea again. This required considerable persuasion and $3 in money. I right with the newspaper man whom he had brought over.

Now the next adventure in this Arabian nightmare occurred. At first I thought it was the reflection of the rising sun in the windows of the cottage which caused the red light, but when I looked to the east I saw that the sun was not up.

Then the house must be on fire: Clearly I had no time to lose. Probably every one was sleeping. I ran up the path from the beach to the house, my temples bursting with the exertion. By the time I got to the front door the flames were beginning to lick out of one of the upstairs windows.

I throw myself against the front; door and broke the lock without cere mony. The stairway was still clear.
I dashed up, yelling, "Fire!"

The people began to come out in various stages of undress, carrying clothing, and valuables. Vida's stage experience stood her in good stead. She emerged from her room completely dressed and went downstairs as if she were answering a rehearsal call. All were accounted for but Lucile

At last the smoke began to be unbearable in the hallway, and the crackling of the flames warned me that in an instant the stairs would be impassable. I stood on ceremony no longer. I threw open Lucile's door. She was looking aimlessly about her,

"I can't find my other stocking," she announced caimly. "Pon't be excited!" I shouted. "The house is on fire, and we've got to get grabbed a blanket that was flung over the foot of her bed, wrapped her in It and swept her off her feet and Intomy arms.

The rescue was very simple. There was a little smoke on the sinfrway, and in a minute it would have been hard to get down, but as it was I only floor, which had not caught yet. However, I carried Lucile clear out in the front yard and deposited her in

"Can't anything be done?" "Not much now." I shrugged my shoulders, "When a fire gets that much headway in a country house built of wood there is nothing much to do but save the nearby buildings."

How could it have caught?" asked Bopp, trying to put his left shoe on his right foot. He had carried them both out in his hands.

"No one was up," sald Jim, the firemau.

"How did you come to be around, | Monty?" Bopp straightened up with a quick glance at me. "Mrs. Green telephoned that you were going to the

Some Janesville offizens have asked why the campaign had to be put on, now that the war has been won.

Victor P. Richardson, general chairman of the executive committee, answers that question in this manner:

Brock sounded his own knell the other night by his tactics following his defeat at the hands of brankie Britt of New Bedford, Mass, in Central armory, Cleveland, O., Brock's home town. Then men fought at the lightweight limit and Britt cleanly outpointed Brock. The two wore going it hammer and tongs whon the gong rang. Brock's followers, who had bet heavily on him, were yolling at him. The sound of the final gong was drowned out. at him. The sound of was drowned out.

When Referee Matt Hinkel heard above the yells the word the bell had rung he slipped between the boys and told them clearly the bont was over. Both lighters heard. Britt smiled and walked to his corner, then turned and came back to shake hands with Brock. Brock stepped toward him and deliberately knocked him out with two blows. The first blow was struck as Britt held has gloved hands togother straight in front of him, as a boxer does to shake hands. Britt's seconds rushed to the eastern boy's assistance. Ginsherr, Brock's manager, and Phil Brock. Matt Brock's brother, jumped into the ring and toward Britt and his seconds. In the shuffle that followed one of Britt's men was knocked out.

There was absolutely no excuse for Matt Brook's action. He tried weakly to alibl, but the public didn't fall for

We would gather up the ducks as Bob brought them to us and then more on until we located up the ducks as Bob brought them to us and then move on until we located another raft of ducks at a favorable distance from shore. Thus we would continue until we became became so tired and hungry we could have enten a duck friend in coal tar. With the gun stock strained almost to the breaking point by the weight of the ducks, we would homeward plod our weary way, hungry and tired, but oh! so proud and happy. Would that such happiness could always be continued until we pass over the Great Divide into the Happy Hunting Grounds!

The wood duck is one of the most graceful of any of the wild ducks, and have most strange nocturnal habits, nightly visiting every stretch of water for miles around their habitat. They also make an afternoon flight nearly every afternoon to some adjoining stream or lake, always preferring those surrounded by timber.—William C. Hazelton.

The Reelfoot Lake bisin at twillight, when the screech-owls are quavering out their lost-soul dirges in the gathering gloom, is one of the most desolate places on earth. The golden plover is a splendid little game bird. They are a bird of the prairies and also are fond of frequenting ploughed fields. Being very swift on the wing they afford excellent practice in wing shooting. The general coloring of the bird is grayish bine, mottled with gold spots.—William C, Hazelton.

Attention! Mr. Auto Owner

Whether you intend to run your car this winter or not, this notice will be of interest to you.

If you jack up your car for the winter, your storage battery must not be allowed to stand as it will freeze very easily if discharged. We have facilities for taking care of this battery for you, and returning same in good condition ready for immediate service in the spring.

If you run your car this winter, special attention should be given to the storage battery as cold weather makes every battery only about 65 per cent efficient. Be sure that it is fully charged at all times.

If you are uncertain as to the condition of your battery, drop in and let us look it over for you. A stitch in time saves nine.

The ablest modern efficiency engineer could not havedone better.

Janesville is the metropolis of one of the richest, most inviting regions in this broad land.

With every natural advantage conducive to bigness Janesville does not depend upon these to carry her forward in the march of progress---her professional and business men are leagued together to DESERVE advancement for their town and are co-operating with each other in a whole-hearted way to SECURE it.

The PEOPLE of Janesville also vie with the merchants in the work of making the home town SHINE by the quality of its SER-VICE and the genuineness of its GOOD WILL.

Thousands of families live within comparatively easy reach of Janesville that ought to be TRADING here.

There are steam roads, interurbans and good roads running into Janesville from every direction—Use these roads—they were BUILT for the express purpose of MAKING IT EASY for people like you to COME here!

Hook up the TEAM and DRIVE over, or crank the CAR and SPIN over-you'll find accommodations for the horses, or a parking place for the car when you GET here--and IT WILL ALWAYS PAY YOU TO COME!

Janesville has as live and accommodating and likable a lot of business people as can be found anywhere--and they WANT your PATRONAGE.

Janesville is a FRIENDLY TOWN--and the LATCH-STRING IS OUT!
